Le Parister – the newest Parisian hotel in a prime location

In between the Folies Bergères and the Opera Garnier, among the food outlets on Rue des Martyrs and Cadet market lies a haven that embodies a neighbourhood emulation that is as inspiring as it is inspired.

In the heart of the Faubourgs neighbourhood, the Parister will open its doors in September 2017. The result of Nicolas Nonon's wish to offer a hybrid, lively and original venue, the Parister promises its guests to please them no matter what.

Who are these connoisseurs? Parisians? Travellers?

For all those who like taking care of themselves without any fuss, who like to burn off energy but also to eat, take time to dream and laugh; in other words, those who are looking for the true pleasures of life, the pleasures of the body and the mind.

An architecture and interior design signed by Aldric Beckmann

The site, a genuine architectural feat, was designed by the Beckmann N'Thépé studio. Drawing inspiration from the Paris Faubourgs, a dense area that abounds in thousand architectural treasures, hidden courtyards and enclosed gardens, Aldric Beckmann has designed a hotel of a new kind. Behind a discreet façade hides large living spaces, a small luxuriant garden and a bold building. Thanks to the original material, shotcrete, the plants blend into the facade. The ceiling mouldings, cupboards in genuine walnut, the poetry of an artist's wallpaper and the details in brass help to bring Parisian style to the 45 rooms and suites that are housed within the walls of the Parister. A 20-metre pool bathed in natural light offers guests a rare opportunity in Paris to enjoy a few lengths in a resolutely modern and zen ambience.

A creative collective But this is the tribal spirit that definitely signs the Parister's uniqueness. More than a family it is a collective which Nicolas Nonon brings together in order to offer an insight into an authentic life in the Faubourgs neighbourhood. Going out, exploring, drinking, eating, a programme developed by "Made in Paris" experts. The Parister hotel places its trust in the ShapeYourDay label created by Grégory Mollet-Viéville and Romain Rainaut in order to ensure that, at this original venue, you enjoy healthy and sporty experiences. For lunch, everything is fresh and homemade, according to the market and the season. At night, the menu will perfectly fit the signature cocktails of the Distrat's mixologist entertainer.
